Abstract

The report covers features of conducting local history research in conditions of a limited basis of historical sources taking two objects as an example: the Republican Biological Reserve “Dnepro-Sozhsky” and Polesie State Radiation and Ecological Reserve.

There are examples of looking for alternative sources of information and specific methods of data verification.

The report provides the justification of a need in organizing interdisciplinary research with the involvement of specialists in the field of the history of architecture, archaeology, genealogy, necropolistics and hydrology.

There are prospects of organizing further research including the participation of foreign experts.
